Any motion must be filed with the office which originally decided your case along with a fee of $110 as required under 8 C.F.R. 103.7.

FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a specialty cook. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the filing date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's filing date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's filing date is June 23, 1997. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $627.20 per week or $36,254.40 per annum.

Counsel submitted copies of the petitioner's 1997 and 1999 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. The tax return for 1997 reflected gross receipts of $567,490; gross profit of $309,269; compensation of officers of $44,200; salaries and wages paid of $56,170; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of $765. The tax return for 1999 reflected gross receipts of $557,914; gross profit of $297,435; compensation of officers of $45,050; salaries and wages paid of $74,945; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of -$29,180.

The director determined that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel submits copies of the beneficiary's W-2 Wage and Tax Statement which shows he was paid $19,816 in 1998, $17,919 in 1999, and $16,605 in 2000, and argues that the salaries paid to part-time employees could be used to pay the beneficiary's wage.

Counsel's assertion that the salaries paid to part-time employees could be used to pay the beneficiary's wage is not persuasive. These funds were not retained by the petitioner for future use. Instead, these monies were expended on compensating part-time employees, and therefore, not readily available for payment of the beneficiary's salary in 1997.

Counsel further argues that the owner could pay the wage from his personal assets. The petitioning entity in this case is a corporation. Consequently, any assets of the individual stockholders including ownership of shares in other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of M, 6 I&N Dec. 24 (BIA 1958; AC 1958); Matter of Aphrodite Investments Limited, 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980); and Matter of Tessel, 17 I&N Dec. 631 (Act. Assoc. Comm. 1980).

The petitioner's Form 1120 for calendar year 1997 shows a taxable income of $765. The petitioner could not pay a proffered wage of $36,254.40 a year out of this taxable income.

In addition, the petitioner's Form 1120 for calendar year 1999 continues to show an inability to pay the proffered wage.

Accordingly, after a review of the federal tax returns submitted, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered at the time of filing of the petition.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 9 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
